ABOUT ME

I am Mohammad Mollashahi, born in 2004, and graduated with a degree in Psychology from the University of Sistan and Baluchestan.

Alongside my university studies, I have specialized in web design and development, and I am a graduate of the web design program at IO Learn Institute.

My experience working in various environments and executing multiple web and application projects has helped me to not only develop technical skills but also understand the project lifecycle, user needs, and the importance of professional design in digital products.

I always strive to create a balance between modern aesthetics, smooth user experience, optimal performance, and acceptable technical structure in my projects.
